1918 Mrs. Jesse Lilienthal and Miss Harriet Selma Rosenthal established the Community Music School of the Girl's Club of San Francisco.

1921 Community Music School moved to its current home at 544 Capp Street under the founding direction of Gertrude Field.

1923 The Community Chest (now The United Way) was formed and began supporting Community Music School. Community Music School Board members were city leaders.

1926 The auditorium, upstairs offices and four practice rooms were added to the original building on Capp Street.

1953 Community Music School became Community Music Center.

1973 San Francisco Community Orchestra, San Francisco Community Chorus, and the San Francisco Children's Chorus were formed as part of Community Music Center.

1983 Community Music Center opened its Richmond District Branch.

1987 CMC developed the first iteration of the Young Musicians Program with free theory, musicianship and ensemble classes for the academic year.

Mission
Community Music Center makes high quality music accessible to people of all ages, backgrounds and abilities, regardless of financial means.

Vision
We believe in the power of music to connect people, celebrate cultures, and transform lives. Community Music Center (CMC) is a cornerstone San Francisco cultural institution and a vital hub for music education and performance anchored in the Mission District. We envision students and faculty who are engaged and fulfilled in making music together, and audiences who are energized by their experiences. Inspired by their training, our students are empowered to find their own voice, develop lasting relationships, embrace learning, and give back to their communities.

All Are Welcome Here
CMC's Growing Student Community

Number of students increased 15% to 3,100 with nearly $2.4M given in tuition assistance.

Dear Friends,

We are pleased to make our Fiscal Year 2019 Annual Report available to you: our extraordinary community of supporters.

There was so much to celebrate this year at CMC, including the launch of a new tuition-free program for the transgender, intersex, and genderqueer community; the release of a national study supporting the benefits of choral singing for older adults; and a record-setting level of tuition assistance for our students. Your generosity coupled with fiscal discipline enabled CMC to provide more than $2.4 million in financial aid and scholarships, reaching more than 3,100 students in the Bay Area—the highest amount of assistance and the largest number of students we have served in our history.

Of great significance, the Board of Directors approved a new strategic plan to help guide CMC as we enter our second century of service to the City of San Francisco and the Bay Area. Our strategic planning process involved more than 300 students, faculty, and community members and prioritized campus expansion; diversity, equity, and inclusion practices; and growth, retention, and support of faculty and staff.

The process also allowed us to define and highlight these long-held core values, which will shape and guide our decisions for years to come:

COMMUNITY. We bring diverse people into a welcoming environment to study, create, and enjoy music together. We respect and embrace all music traditions and promote understanding through culturally responsive musical training and programs. We adapt programs to meet community needs and partner with others to extend our reach and impact.

ACCESSIBILITY. We believe everyone deserves equitable access to high-quality, inclusive music education and performances. We offer a generous tuition-assistance program and a full range of musical experiences that build human potential and a life-long appreciation of music.

STUDENT-CENTERED LEARNING. We cultivate artistic growth for people of all ages and abilities through outstanding music education and performance opportunities. Our accomplished faculty encourages creativity and personal expression, customizing teaching to individual needs. Through passion and love of music, we inspire students to reach their fullest potential.

COMMITMENT. We build lasting relationships with students, faculty and partners, and demonstrate integrity in our actions. We pledge to continuously improve our facilities and programs to cultivate our future, commemorate our legacy, and preserve a vital sanctuary for music on behalf of this and new generations.

With these values in mind, CMC plans to break ground on our expanded Mission District Campus, a project that will culminate in CMC’s momentous Centennial. We are dedicated to continuing our work in the spirit of “music for everyone.” Thank you for entrusting us with your support today and into the future.

With our gratitude,

Julie Rulyak Steinberg                   Barbara Kosnar
Executive Director                           Board Chair
CMC students receive opportunities and access

Saxophonist and Young Musicians Program student Thomas Bombara refers to CMC as the “bedrock” of his music education. “CMC is probably the most important part of me becoming a musician. It’s been an amazing opportunity. The amount of teachers and the quality has been the foundation of my studies.” Thomas, who attends Ruth Asawa School of the Arts, is applying for college at music schools across the country. He’s planning on a career as a professional musician.

Conal Sathi is a software engineer and piano student who takes two lessons a week and is enrolled in the Jazz Ensemble. “I realized three years ago that the time was now to pursue music. Soon after, I started working part time and playing four hours a day, plus the lessons.” When he performed at the Emanuel Ax Master Class in April, he had a chance to work with a legend. “The experience made me appreciate the high caliber of instruction I receive at CMC. It reinforced my lessons, plus Mr. Ax’s attention to detail was amazing.”

Maira Cabrera always wanted to sing. Ten years ago, she first brought her son to CMC for lessons and later he joined MDYMP. After her kids got older, she started taking lessons with Martha Rodriguez-Salazar. Music lessons have been possible for Maira through CMC’s sliding-scale tuition program. “Paying little by little is the only way I can afford my lessons… Taking lessons here has helped me be a more confident person…It has helped me sing!”
New Voices and new ideas

In September 2018, CMC launched New Voices Bay Area TIGQ Chorus, a mixed voice tuition-free chorus for transgender, intersex, and genderqueer (TIGQ) singers to provide a safe, creative space to make great music together. In February, CMC hosted a first-of-its-kind vocal symposium that featured members of the chorus, CMC faculty, and experts in vocal pedagogy. “Trans and Singing: A Symposium for Voice Teachers and Singers” was a day of presentations on transgender singing for voice teachers and singers of all genders. It was a collaboration of the CMC Voice Department, New Voices Bay Area TIGQ Chorus, and funded by a CMC Partnership Grant.

“Through deepened understanding we hope to help create more safe spaces for TIGQ vocal expression, music making, and community building, bettering TIGQ people’s lives, and broadening musical perspectives in the field at large.”
—Jonathan Smucker, CMC Voice Department Chair

Mission District Young Musicians Program strengthens neighborhood roots

In December 2018, MDYMP took part in an intergenerational performance at the Mission Arts and Performance Project (MAPP) playing dance music for a packed audience with the CMC Cuban Charanga Ensemble made up of adult students. CMC hosted Jóvenes del Barrio in March 2019 with MDYMP, Buena Vista Horace Mann Mariachi Program, and Ballet Folklórico Cuicacalli, highlighting the talent of Mission District youth with music from Mexico, Cuba, and Colombia. MDYMP also performed in May in the San Francisco Carnaval in the “Art Across the Ages” contingent, an intergenerational comparsa celebrating the positive impact of music and art for all ages with Ruth’s Table, Trash Mash-Up, Thurgood Marshall High School, and Bethany Center. The contingent won a third place award in Carnaval’s youth category!

Under the guidance of YMP faculty and the Left Coast Chamber Ensemble, YMP students worked in teams to create and perform original chamber works. During the project, the mentors demonstrated extended instrumental techniques, discussed their experiences working with international composers, and helped the students to discover their own voices. Students were also encouraged to draw on the skills developed during YMP music theory and ensemble classes. The project resulted in a final performance, where student ensembles performed their compositions.
Welcoming new choirs and new faculty

The latest addition to CMC’s Older Adult Choir Program is the CMC Visitacion Valley Older Adult Choir, directed and accompanied by Rita Lackey. This choir launched in November 2018 and is in partnership with Felton/Family Service Agency. Rita Lackey is a Bay Area musician and teacher, with a background in choir direction and teaching private lessons. She has an affinity for traditional jazz, R&B, and gospel music.

CMC also partnered with EngAGE to provide a Cantonese older adult choir pilot program at a Mercy Housing site in the Tenderloin, which launched February 2019 under the direction of David Wong. Each week, around 30 people came together to learn a variety of Chinese music. The new choir was modeled after other choirs in the Older Adult Choir Program through the guidance of Older Adult Choir Program staff, faculty, and the use of the Community of Voices Program Manual. The choir was well-received with favorable feedback from the participants, and CMC is looking forward to a continued partnership with EngAGE and serving more seniors in affordable housing communities.

Groundbreaking UCSF study finds community choirs reduce loneliness and increase interest in life

CMC’s Older Adult Choir Program was first developed out of the five-year Community of Voices (COV) study led by UC San Francisco (UCSF) and in collaboration with CMC and the San Francisco Department of Aging and Adult Services (DAAS). The COV study examined whether singing in a community choir is a cost-effective way to promote health and well-being among culturally diverse older adults. COV choirs were led by CMC faculty, using music that was culturally tailored for each choir, and appropriate for older adults with various singing abilities. The results of this study were released in the Journal of Gerontology: Psychological Sciences on November 9, 2018. The findings showed that singing in a choir reduced loneliness and increased an interest in life.

With the release of the COV study results, the Community of Voices Study Choir Program Manual was also released. This manual, developed by UCSF, CMC, and DAAS, provides information about how to create a community choir for older adults. The manual and information about the study have been shared through multiple national and local networks including the National Guild for Community Arts Education, the National Association for Area Agencies on Aging, and others.

“The choir has made a big change in my life. The experience was wonderful with the Community of Voices program, and I wanted to continue singing after the study ended. The choir has helped me with my breathing, with getting me out of the house, and meeting new people - things that would not have happened without the choir.”

—Isabel Heredia, CMC Coro Solera and 30th Street Older Adult Choir
“Cultural Traditions in Diaspora” was a special Field Day concert of CMC faculty from the Brass/Winds and Cultural Traditions Departments. The concert was curated by faculty members Miguel Govea and Tregar Otton and showcased the remarkable talent of the CMC faculty.

The program for “Cultural Traditions in Diaspora” ran the gamut of musical genres, with the common theme being music born from cultural diasporas and migrations, such as tango, jazz, Afro-Cuban, and others.

Original compositions were presented by CMC faculty members Jon Jang, Cecilia Peña-Govea, Maestro Curtis, Larry Dunn, and Annelise Zamula. Other faculty members put together arrangements from composers Astor Piazzolla, Eduardo Gamboa, Isolina Carrillo, and Eddie Palmieri.

“Sin-Tung Chiu celebrates 30 years”

Sin-Tung Chiu, violin faculty member, celebrated his 30 year anniversary of teaching at CMC. He held a recital in honor of this occasion, while also celebrating the 25th anniversary of his musical partnership with pianist Dmitriy Cogan. The program featured all Beethoven sonatas, since the recital was on Beethoven’s birthday. Proceeds from the performance benefitted the Bella and P.P. Chiu Memorial Scholarship Fund for CMC students.

“CMC collaborates with Opera Parallèle”

CMC partnered with Opera Parallèle in staging the children’s opera Xochitl and the Flowers / Xóchitl, la niña de las flores on May 18 and 19 at CMC. The opera, based on the children’s book by Jorge Argüeta, tells the story of a Salvadoran family setting down roots in the Mission District, while preserving the heritage of their homeland. The story was based on real-life events of a woman who turned an abandoned lot in the Mission District into a thriving garden. The music was composed by Chris Pratorius Gómez with a libretto by Roma Olvera. The work was performed in English and Spanish, with scenery painted by a local muralist.

CMC faculty provided artistic leadership, with Martha Rodríguez-Salazar as Conductor and Beth Wilmurt as Stage Director. CMC students participated in the production as well. The CMC Children’s Chorus and Coro de Cámara performed alongside Opera Parallèle company members to sold-out performances.
